WHO IS THE NT WORKING WOMEN'S CENTRE?

The NT Working Women's Centre (NTWWC) is a community based, non-profit organisation that was established in 1994, with offices in Darwin and Alice Springs. The NTWWC provides free and confidential advice to women about work related matters such as: pay, working conditions, unfair dismissal, superannuation, discrimination, harassment, occupational health and safety and bullying. The NTWWC targets services to those in a disadvantaged bargaining position, or in insecure and low paid work, particularly:

- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander women
- Women from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Women who have a disability
- Women in regional, rural and remote areas
- Women with family responsibilities
- Women of mature age
- Young women
- Women in low paid jobs
- Women on 457 visas
- Women about to enter the workforce

Women can contact the NTWWC on the free call number. In situations where women require more ongoing support the NTWWC can provide a longer-term case role. Services are provided throughout the NT and staff visits regional centres and some remote communities. The NTWWC can also provide group training sessions to women on topics such as: Women's Rights at Work, Enterprise Bargaining, Discrimination, Bullying, Negotiating with Employers, and the Fair Work Act 2009. We also identify work related issues for women in the NT, and provide policy advice to governments and other agencies, and comment to the media.
