Five years after the introduction of the Fair Work Act and with potential changes to the hard won parental leave entitlements introduced by the Gillard Government set for legislative amendment later this year. How are women faring in the workplace?

Will there be changes in the industrial relations landscape for women? The Our Work Our Lives Conference 2014 has a national focus and provides a forum to examine and reflect on the current state of play for women at work.

The program is designed to bring together policy makers and implementers, researchers and academics, practitioners, unions and community based workers as well as anyone with an interest in gender and work.

May is a beautiful time of year in Southern Queensland with typically clear sunny days and cool evenings.

Themes of the Conference will include:

- Indigenous Women
- NESB and CALD Women
- Pay Equity
- Women in precarious or vulnerable work
- Opportunities and limitations around balancing work and life
