

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Written and laid out by: Anna Davis, Rachael Uebergang, Rachael Dunn and the NT Working Women's Centre staff past and present.

Proofreading for legal accuracy: The NT Working Women's Centre gratefully acknowledges Romi Slaven and Liz Rakitovsky, from Clayton Utz (Darwin) for checking the accuracy of this information.

General contributions: The NTWWC gratefully acknowledges Cathy Spurr from Halfpennys Lawyers for contributing to the information on Workers' Compensation, Wendi Masters for contributing to information about trainees and apprentices, and the Domestic and Family Violence Clearinghouse from the University of New South Wales which has contributed to the factsheet on Domestic Violence, Sexual Assault and the Workplace.

Funding: The NT Working Women's Centre gratefully acknowledges the support of the Northern Territory Government Department of Business and the Darwin City Council in funding Women and Work.

Disclaimer: The information, opinions and advice contained in this work have been prepared with due care and are believed to be correct at the time of printing. The publishers expressly disclaim any liability whatsoever to any person who suffers any loss arising from the contents of, errors in, or omissions from this publication. This information is not intended as a substitute for legal advice.

Please note that it is recommended that you seek advice for further information about your situation.

Edition 1 August 2007 (web published)
Edition 2 November 2008 (web published)
Edition 3 September 2009 (web published)
Edition 4 May 2010
Edition 5 December 2013

INTRODUCTION

Congratulations on taking the right step towards knowing your rights at work.

The NT Working Women's Centre is pleased to release Edition 5 of Women & Work.

We hope that the women of the Northern Territory find this publication useful in their working life.

The NT Working Women's Centre, which assists thousands of women in the Northern Territory each year, is only too aware of the extent and magnitude of problems working women face. It is important that women are well informed about their workplace rights in employment and the systems that exist to protect their rights.

Since conditions, entitlements and situations differ widely from one workplace to another, and since there are changes to employment legislation year to year, we strongly advise women with problems or concerns at work to seek specialised information and assistance when it is required.

This series of factsheets has been produced to provide NT women with general information about their rights and entitlements, as well as their responsibilities and an overview of employment law. Women who are aware of their rights are in a stronger position to make informed decisions at work and will know how and where to take action to address a problem at work.

Regards

NT Working Women's Centre